Portuguese history. It is a VILLAGE that has assumed a cultural and environmental context of specific characteristics: a cultural unit that has remained intact in a plethora of palaces and parks; of manor houses and their gardens and woods; of palaces and chalets inserted in the middle of a lush vegetation; of extensive walled sections that crown the highest peaks of the Sierra. Also of a set of meditation convents among cliffs, woods and fountains: of churches, chapels and hermitages, secular poles of faith and art; in short, a cultural unity intact in an integration of archaeological remains that point to occupations several times millenary. Only with your visit can you appreciate the attractiveness and magnetism of this magnificent Quinta.
